Safely Connect with Friends and Family

Recommended practices to help you weigh the risks and plan accordingly

Staying home is still the best way to lower our risk of COVID-19, but many of us are eager to take small steps to safely see our friends and family again. This guidance helps you weigh the risks to prevent new cases and serious illness from quickly increasing.

Take health & safety precautions
These steps will help protect you and others and keep COVID-19 from spreading.
- Keep a 6-ft distance from other people.
- Wear a face mask or cloth face covering.
- Wash your hands with soap and water or use hand sanitizer.
- Stay home if you are sick or have recently been exposed to someone who has COVID-19. Call your doctor to see if you should be tested.

Keep your social circle small
This will make it easier to know who else may have been exposed and needs to self-isolate if someone gets sick.
- Choose one other trusted household that is also taking health and safety precautions. This could be another family, or members of your own family who live in a separate household.
- Limit your group to 10 people or fewer.
- Keep a list of who you have been in close contact with each day.

Stay close to home
This lowers the chance of having to stop along the way where you may be in close contact with others or exposed to contaminated surfaces.
- Limit non-essential travel to short distances.
- Consider outdoor spaces and open areas where it is not too crowded and easier to keep a physical distance.
- Choose activities that do not require sharing food or touching shared objects or other surfaces.

Protect those at higher risk
People age 65 and over and people with underlying medical conditions are more likely to develop more severe illness.
- Those at higher risk for serious illness should continue to stay at home.
- Connect with one another by phone, computer or video.
